

If I don't do anything, will I lose my TV?

Contributed by Administrator
Wednesday, 20 February 2008

Yes - if you don't already have digital TV and don't do anything, you won't be able to continue watching television broadcasts after switchover (Remember, you probably already have digital TV if you can receive more than the five traditional channels). You will also need to ensure that every TV set in your home that you want to use to watch TV broadcasts can receive digital TV. Any TV set that you use solely to play back videotapes or DVDs, or with a games console, will not need to be converted.